

Pssst, This Is How You Revamp Your Walls for Under $50

Spring is finally here and if you're living up to the gospel of every home and garden magazine, you're busy cleaning, organizing and purging. Me...not so much. My spring to-dos are all about livening up my space \(and closets!\) with fresh colors. Outside, I'll be planting hydrangeas and daffodils along with colorful veggies. Inside, I'll be refreshing my walls with new artwork.

Spicing up your living space isn't as hard (or as expensive) as it may seem. There has never been a better time to buy gorgeous, super affordable framed art. From high-quality reprints to originals and canvas to tapestries, there are so many possibilities for every room of the house. If your walls already feel crowded, make way for new pieces by reordering them with your faves to design a gallery wall. The best part? Anything goes when it comes to styling one: Framed photography alongside canvas, pictures arranged close together or far apart...it all works!

We've got a slew of fun trends to mine this spring—succulents as art, pretty shades of blush, pieces with a handmade artisan vibe, mixed materials, beautiful typography and so much more. Below we've rounded up some of our favorite on-trend art under $50 to get you inspired. Your walls will thank you.

Blush Crush

This pretty in pink palette makes it easy to incorporate one of home decor's hottest colors on your wall. Pops of soft and bright pinks feel playful alongside rich golden hues. A sleek gold frame adds sophistication to the 13 x 13 print.
